THIS WEEK'S

INTERIOR TRENDS

nature's luxe

Embracing luxury natural and eco materials in high-end interior design yields breathtaking results, elevating spaces into realms of extraordinary beauty and sustainability. From ethically sourced woods to exquisite natural stones, these materials infuse elegance and warmth, creating a harmonious connection with nature while imbuing spaces with timeless allure.

INSPIRED Elegance

Expressing culture through the boundless realms of creativity is not only profoundly inspiring but also serves as a transformative force, bridging diverse worlds and enriching the human experience.

Created by the visionary collaboration of designer Jae Omar and architect Eran Gispan, the ONIN property is a true masterpiece that pays homage to the past, embraces the present, and envisions the future. Built within the exclusive Royal Oaks enclave, this extraordinary Japanese-inspired modern farmhouse is a testament to ancient Japanese wisdom, inspired design, and forward-thinking concepts.

Designer Jae Omar is a highly acclaimed creative force, renowned for his visionary designs that blend innovation, luxury, and cultural influences and Architect Eran Gispan's genius lies in his ability to blend imagination and functionality, crafting spaces that inspire and uplift. His visionary designs redefine boundaries, leaving a lasting impact on the built environment. When two masterminds in creativity and cultural innovation collaborate in design and architecture, magic happens. Boundaries are shattered, new possibilities emerge, and the world witnesses a harmonious fusion of brilliance and inspiration.

Drawing inspiration from traditional Japanese craftsmanship, the striking wooden facade of the home is achieved through the artful technique of shou-sugi-ban, complemented by meticulously hand-applied plaster work that exudes opulence. As you step through the 12-foot entry door, you are greeted by a double-height foyer adorned with exquisite book-matched slabs of marble, known as the Butterfly Pavilion, creating a captivating first impression. With artful reeded wood panels, seamless wooden flooring flows throughout the house, intelligent placement of contrasting features in dark and light tones, and creative applications of different kinds of stone, the house is well textured and has a smooth flow.

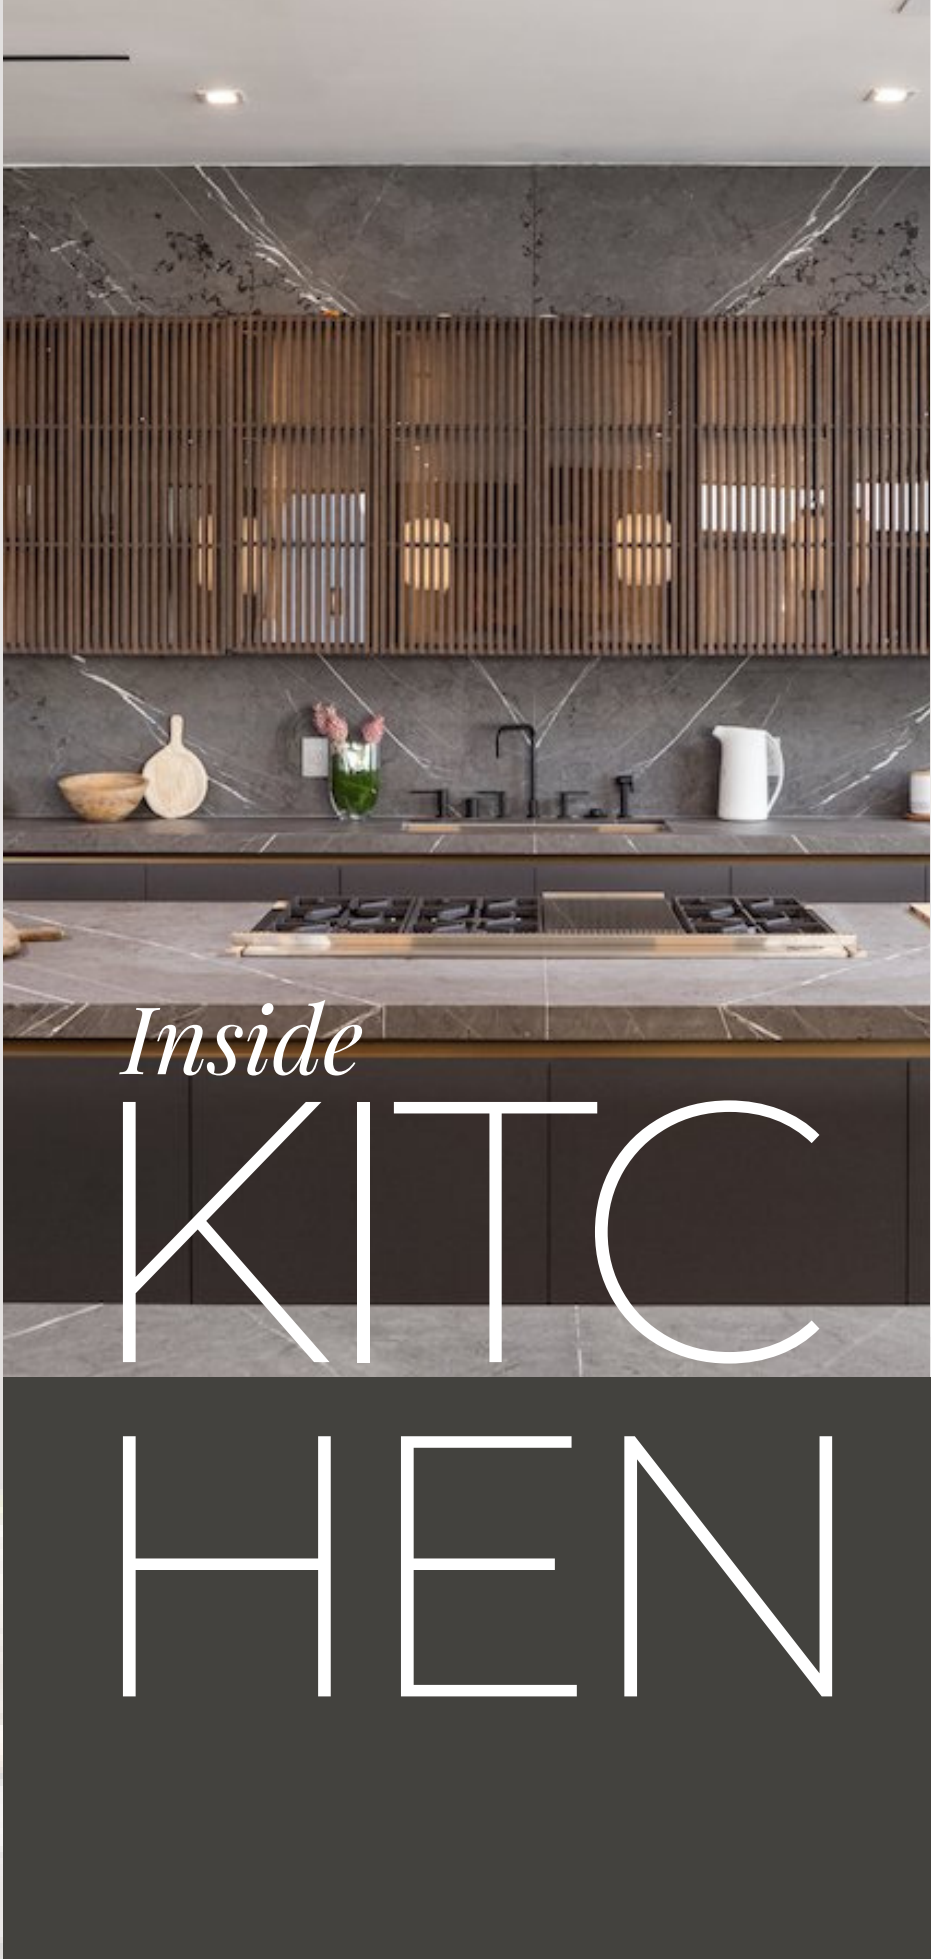

One of my favorite features is the placement of Bonsai Trees in front of dark textured walls in two idyllic places outside.

High ceilings and the feeling of volume give this house an unprecedented attachment from the entry to the garden. Each space is thoughtfully illuminated by designer lighting, capturing the essence of authenticity and paying homage to the Japanese influence that underpins the design. Through the ONIN residence, this traditionally interwoven masterpiece is seamlessly articulated with the contemporary design and architectural elements of today's modern farmhouse, resulting in a breathtaking testament to the power of fusion and creativity.

KITCHEN

The sleek, seamless, and knobless cabinetry exudes contemporary sophistication, complemented by the textured allure of reeded wood panels. Grey and white stones adorn the space, infusing it with a refined elegance. Japanese lantern-inspired lighting fixtures cast a soft, ambient glow, accentuating the harmonious design. Neutral colors and warm textures harmoniously converge, creating a captivating space that invites serenity and balance.
